

The IOSH Directing Safely Course has been developed to give directors and owners of organisations with fewer than 250 employees an understanding of the moral, legal and business case for proactive health and safety management.

↳ Benefits of Attending

Successful completion leads to the award of the nationally recognised IOSH certificate.

Delegates will have a clear understanding of their individual responsibilities as a senior executive within an organisation.

Delegates will be able to promote and drive the management of health and safety forward within an organisation.

↳ Course Structure

Understanding of the course material is evaluated by means of a 15 minute written assessment paper consisting of 10 multiple choice questions and a project designed to test the delegate's knowledge of acceptable records/documentary evidence required to support an organisation's defence in litigation.

It is divided into eight modules:

1. Aims and Objectives – introduction to the programme.
2. H & S Management – good business sense, examining the reasons for the promotion of health and safety.
3. Health and Safety – getting it wrong, raising awareness and understanding of accidents and their causes, consequences and costs.
4. Health and Safety – getting it right, understanding the principles of effective health and safety management requirements for compliance with legislation.
5. Planning for Success – identifying the roles of risk assessment and risk control systems in successful planning.
6. People, Your Most Valuable Asset – recognising the value of people within the organisation and factors affecting their performance.
7. How Well Are You Performing? – exploring methods of measuring performance.
8. Improving Performance – considering ways of improving performance.
